Homosexual prostitution inquiry ensnares VIPs with Reagan, Bush

By Paul H. Rodriguez and George Archibald

A homosexual prostitution ring is under investigation by federal and District of Columbia and includes among its clients key officials of the Reagan and Bush administrations, military officers, congressional aides and U.S. and foreign businessmen with close access to Washington's political elite, documents obtained by The Washington Times reveal.

One of the ring's high profile victims was a well-connected, in fact, that he could arrange a middle of the night tour of the White House for his friends on Sunday, July 3, of this year. Among the six persons on the itinerary 3 a.m. tour were two male prostitutes.

Federal authorities, including the Secret Service, are investigating criminal aspects of the ring and have told male prostitutes who took homosexual clients that a grand jury will deliberate over the evidence throughout the summer, the Times learned.

Reporters for this newspaper examined hundreds of credit card vouchers, checks on both corporate and personal cards and made inquiries to the career service operated by the homosexual ring. Many of the vouchers were run through a so-called "sub-contract" account of the Executive Personnel House by a son of the owner, without the company's knowledge.

Among the other services contracted to the vouchers — also identified by journalists and career operators — are psychiatric services, socially trained U.S. military officers, old Hanky Boudier, managing editor of the Times.

The office of U.S. Attorney Jay B. Stephens, former deputy White House counsel to President Reagan, is conducting detailed aspects of the inquiry but refused to discuss the investigation or grand jury action.

Several former White House employees of Mr. Stephens are listed among clients of the homosexual prostitution ring, according to the credit-card records, and these persons have confirmed that the charges were theirs.

Mr. Stephens' office, after first stating it would cooperate with The Times' inquiry, withdrew the offer late yesterday and also declined to say whether Mr. Stephens would require himself from the case because of possible conflict of interest.

At least one highly placed Bush administration official and a wealthy businessman who procured thousands of gratuities from the recent secretaries agreed by the ring are cooperating with the investigation, sources say.

Among clients who charged homosexual prostitutes expenses on major credit cards over the past 18 months are Charles E. Claitor, former associate director of presidential personnel in the Ronald and Michelle, and Paul A. Bolch, Labor Secretary Elizabeth Dole's political personnel adviser to the White House.

In the 1980s, Mr. Claitor was a congressional aide to former Rep. Robert Bennett, Maryland Republican who resigned from the House after he admitted having engaged in sexual relations with teenage girls.
